Reading of Anglophone texts with an emphasis on post-war Africa and international history (in englischer Sprache)

Ü, 2st, Di 12-14 und nach Vereinbarung, GWI S125

Beginn: 21 April 2015

This course explores some of the current debates in the field of twentieth-century international history. The aim is to familiarise with different interpretations and methodological approaches to key concepts through a set of English-language readings. These themes include self-determination, human rights, decolonization, and nation-building, and will be analysed with a specific reference and connection to post-war African history.
